Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

FAQs

Q1: Will writing paper be provided for candidates to make notes?

Yes, writing paper will be provided upon request.

Q2: What if students type all their Source-Based Case Study answers under a single response space, or type in a response space for a different question?

During marking, if it is clear that an answer for a particular question is incorrectly entered in a response space, markers will mark accordingly and award marks for the correct question. It is good practice to train students to state the question number before they start response each question.

Q3: For the essay assessment component, where there is a choice of questions, what if students answer all questions?

Students are advised to answer only the required number of questions. As with current practice, should candidates answer all the questions, all their responses will be marked and the highest marks for the required number of responses will be taken. However, as students would expend the exam time answering all the questions, this may affect the quality of the responses, and thus the marks that they would receive.

FAQs

Q4: The e-exam system allows candidates to use typographical features (e.g. bold, italic, underline) in their responses. Will the use of typographical features be assessed?

Candidates are NOT required to use typographical features in their responses. The use of typographical features will NOT be assessed.

Q5: If candidates are to type in big font size and they do not revert to the default size, will they be penalised?

Candidates will NOT be penalised if they submit their responses in big font size.
